

“IN A CLASS BY HERSELF.”

—THE NEW YORK TIMES

WITH HER TWENTY NEW YORK TIMES BESTSELLERS, INCLUDING THE CLASSIC EVERGREEN THAT BEGAN HER REMARKABLE CAREER, BELVA PLAIN TOUCHES READERS’ HEARTS LIKE NO OTHER AUTHOR.

Cassie Wright is a widow in a small New England city, and the owner of a venerable old glassworks company. When a tragic car accident robs her of a loved one, Cassie must put aside her grief to take in the surviving child, one-year-old Guin. But as Guin grows into a shy, dreamy girl, their life together is fraught with conflict. When Guin defies her grandmother by striking out on her own—writing children’s books and eloping with a man far below her social standing—their relationship seems irreparably damaged. It is only when Guin has a child of her own, a little girl who is so very like Cassie in personality, that events come full circle...And she finds that the qualities that drive you apart can also draw you together.

With an astonishing twenty-eight million copies of her books in print, Belva Plain continues to reach new readers. The author’s work is showcased at her web site: www.belvaplain.com
